Upper Shore RSVP plans launch of "share your passion" volunteer support website

Upper Shore Aging is about to debut its phase one website volunteersontheshore.org to support its RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) on the Upper Shore.

The website will be designed to list and promote every volunteer resource for seniors on the shore and to help connect those resources to those who need service.

Website messaging will seek to inspire resource organizations in the community to think about how they can support seniors as they achieve their own agency mission.

The website is part of an overall campaign managed by Upper Shore Aging with funding from Americorps. "Most of all, we want to show how the passion of one person can make a difference in the life of another." reports the Upper Shore Aging County Director Team in charge of the effort. "This goal is aligned to Americorps' mission to "Bring Out the Best in America" and it's critical to build stronger communities on the shore."
